

Financial Leader Dies

Denver March 9. (AP)—Jan Van Houten, 81, widely known in Colorado and New Mexico financial circles died Tuesday in his home here. He had been active in the St. Louis, Rocky mountain and Pacific Coal Mining company, which he headed, until becoming ill a week ago. Van Houten formed the mining firm in 1905 at Raton, N. M. In 1937 he moved to Denver and was a director of the Denver National Bank, American Crystal Sugar company and California Electric company.
